Skin Lightening Cream

with 2% Hydroquinone, Arbutin, Kojic Acid & Tyrostat®

PRODUCT PROFILE: FDA still approves the use of up to 2% Hydroquinone in OTC drug formulas which claim skin lightening effects. Although FDA has proposed to delist this active ingredient, their goal may take several years, or may never happen, due to proof of safety submitted by current manufacturers. This formula uses Hydroquinone, at the maximum, OTC drug level, but the Hydroquinone is fortified with natural biochemical enzyme inhibitors, Tyrostat®, Arbutin and Kojic Acid to give a faster acting formula and a more shelf stable product.

PRODUCT BENEFITS: This Fortified Pigment Fading Cream is much more effective than Hydroquinone alone, and it can remain white and potent when stored in sealed cool conditions.

1. Product stability for this cream has been demonstrated for over three years when packaged in glass, and it should perform the same in any packaging which is impervious to oxygen.
2. Tyrostat® fortifies the skin lightening effect by blocking the formation of melanin pigment in the skin. When new melanin is blocked, the fading effect of Hydroquinone becomes more obvious. Tyrostat is an extract of Rumex, a northern Canadian shrub. (100% natural).

PACKAGING: This reasonably priced but effective formula may be packaged in glass or heavy plastic (Acrylic, PVC or PETE) If you choose a treatment pump, it must include stainless steel spring and ball parts for compatibility with the low pH of Hydroquinone.
